FIELD WORK.

with the effects of coffee drinking. A German woman in Egan, S. D., Mrs. L. Seng, says that she did not know what was the cause of her being sick and miserable as she had been for some years past. Her own words are interesting.

"I had no appetite, suffered considerably with headache and dizziness, and was compelled to take some pills or medicine regularly for my bowels. In this condition I lived for many years. It was poor and dear living as my doctor's bills will show. had no idea that coffee was the cause of my ill health until I read in the paper about Postum Food Coffee and concluded to leave off the coffee and take Postum. "I had only used Postum a week when I began to feel well. My stomach began to work all right, headache left and had no more dizziness. I am able to eat now and sleep and work. During the last season I have been at work in the field where before I was not able to sweep out a room.' As a rule people engaged in active physical work can better stand the toxic effect of the coffee than brain workers who have but little physical exercise, When a man or woman finds sickness coming on, such as stomach trouble, weak eyes, bowel complaint, kidney trouble, etc., it is time some attention is given to the subject of beverages.

In practically all such cases where coffee is the In practically all such cases where coffee is the drink, one can obtain relief by leaving off coffee and taking Postum Food Coffee, for they leave off a drink that is an active producer of disease and take in its place a powerful liquid food that contains elements for rebuilding the nerve centers that have heretofore been town described by the containing the nerve centers that have heretofore been town described by the firm of Tyssowski Bros., merchants on 15th street; Jacob Karr, jeweler; Frank B. STILL MYSTERY

Detectives Unable to Discover Murderer of Young Ayres.

ANALYZING THE BLOOD STAINS

Jury Summoned for the Inquest to Be Held Tomorrow.

AN ARREST PROBABLE

Headquarters detectives remained about the Kenmore Hotel nearly all of last night, and were on hand again early this morning, at work on the James Seymour Ayres murder case, but this afternoon it was stated that the mystery had not been solved.

5 The window sill upon which the imprint of a hand had been made was removed from the hotel vesterday and turned over to Dr. Schaeffer, the medical expert, who also took particles of the stains from the fire escape and the front of the house, as 18 well as pieces of the wall paper from the 18 hall wall on the fourth floor of the hotel an-18 nex. After a careful examination of the 18 imprints Dr. Schaeffer reached the conclusion that they were not made by the hands of the deceased. This leads inevitably to the conclusion that they were made by the individual who left the room after the fatal shots were fired.

Mr. Baker, who saw the party leave the room and descend the fire escape, has closely observed a number of women, at the suggestion of the police, but so far as could be ascertained this afternoon he did not fully identify any of them. That he could get a good view of the woman on the fire escape and possibly recognize her the police are satisfied, for the street about the hotel is brightly lighted, and the wo-man was not many feet from him.

Major Sylvester visited Mr. Baker's room ast night and was shown the condition of the surroundings. This woman, as here-tofore published, was minutely described by Mr. Baker. Her skirt, he says, was of dark goods, probably black, and her skirt was held as high as her knees to prevent its catching in the fire escape. Young Ayres was handsome and attractive, and no motive other than jealousy has been suggested in the case.

The absence of any other motive and the appearance of the woman on the fire escape makes it plain to the police that such jealousy caused the tragedy. With these conditions before them the police have devoted almost their entire time in investi-gating the movements of women, some of whom had been the companions or acquaintances of the deceased. Room after room in the hotel has been searched, but the police say they failed to find in any of them evidence to in any way connect the occupants with the crime. Blood stains on dark dresses or skirts were searched for dark dresses or skirts were searched for, but none could be found. There were no blood stains on the floors or walls of any of the rooms, and some of the detectives gave up hope in the case. Police Responds to Charges. Some comment has been indulged in about the loss of time on the part of the police in starting the investigation. If there was any such loss, it is claimed, it is the fault of the occupants of the hotel rooms and neighbors who heard the pistol shots, and failed to make any outcry. Had the alarm been given when the shots were fired the police believe the guilty party or parties would have been in custody in a short time. As it was, the body remained on the floor in the pool of blood more than six hours before it was found. the south Atlantic states and the Ohio valley and Tennessee. The temperature will fall somewhat in the southwest and lower Mississippi valley.

The winds of the east gain states, pittlons of the country was found.

During this time, the police say, the woman if it be a woman who committed the crime, could have disposed of all evidence in her possession. Her blood-stained dress, for the possession. for the garment must have been stained before she got out the window, could have been cut into shreds and sent down the sewer.

On the other hand, if a man participated in the tragedy, and many people believe such was the case, he could have left the room, following the woman down the fire escape, and gone his way. There has been no identification of the woman who was on the fire escape, and until something more definite is obtained the question of whether the woman was a guest of the hotel or an outsider will not be determined. The detectives as well as Major Sylvester seemed more confident this morning than ever that the mystery will be solved, and it is hinted that they expect to arrest the guilty person before night. During the day the members of Inspector Boardman's staff made mysterious moves about the city and some of them appeared to have information of importance.

An arrangement had been made to have the witnesses in the case, chiefly hotel guests, appear in the district attorney's office this morning and submit to crossexaminations, but this plan was doned, and they will appear at the inquest tomorrow. About twenty-five witnesses, it is stated, have already been summoned.

The Anonymous Letter.

It is believed that the anonymous letter received by Representative Weeks some time ago concerning young Ayres may play an important part in the murder mys-

This letter, is is believed, was written by a woman who was actuated by jealousy. Ayres, as heretofore stated in The Star. was a caller upon the daughter of the Michigan representative, and friends thought he was particularly attentive to her. It is stated that there was no foundation for the statements made in the letter reflecting on Mr. Ayres' character. The young man was told of the letter and he conversed with friends about it, saying it was written for the purpose of injuring him.

Representative Weeks has been communicated with, and he says he will send the letter here if he can possibly find it. He think it has not been destroyed. Should he be able to find it an effort will be made to identify the handwriting. Samples of the handwriting of several women have been obtained and if that in the letter is identified the police think the author of it may render them some assistance.

It develops that Ayres made arrangements to leave the Kenmore on two occa-sions, and it is believed he was persuaded by some of his friends to remain. His father, whom he told of the contemplated change, warmly approved the idea.

Miss Minas Interrogated. Miss Mary Minas, the young woman who occupied room No. 21, adjoining that in which the murder was committed, was summoned to police headquarters this af-

Major Sylvester, Inspector Boardman and some of the detectives heard her repeat the story of her experience in her room the morning of the murder. She told them of having heard the three shots fired in rapid succession, and of the agonizing cries and groans, following a call for "help." The young lady also told of her fright during the early morning hours, and of her report which resulted in the finding of the body. She did not hear two voices in the room of Mr. Ayres at any time, nor did she hear anything prior to the time the shots were

A colored domestic who worked in the hotel is said to have given the police some information concerning Mr. Ayres and a woman which may be of assistance to the officers working on the case.

Coroner Nevitt has not yet obtained a report of the analysis made of the stains on the wall paper. Dr. Schaeffer and the coroner went out into the country this after-noon to experiment with a revolver in order to get a more definite idea of the burns that would be made by firing at certain distances. Arrangements for the inquest have been completed and the jury will meet at the sixth precinct station at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Those who will hear the statements of the witnesses and pass upon the evidence of Anthony Z. Tyssowski of the firm of Tyssowski Bros., merchants

DEAD MAN'S FATHER.

His Views of the Circumstances Surrounding the Murder.

Mr. J. S. Ayres, father of James S. Ayres, jr., the man murdered at the Hotel Kenmore Tuesday night, arrived here last night from Grand Rapids, Mich., in response to a telegram sent to him by Mr. James Burns, telling him of the sudden death of his son. In the telegram Mr. Burns made no reference to the tragedy and it was not until Mr. Ayres bought a paper on the train and read an account of the tragedy that he was aware his son had died a violent death. Mr. Ayres is sixty-three years old and is one of the best-known citizens of the state of Michigan, having served for a time as chairman of the republican county committee and having made a race for Congress in 1890. Although he was defeated he ran far ahead of the republican state ticket because of his personal popularity. His home is at Port Austin, but he was at Grand Rapids on business when he received the sad news.

James Seymour Ayres, jr., the deceased, was one of four sons, all prosperous young men. Two sisters of the boys died several years ago. Having read newspaper acounts of his son's untimely end, Mr. Ayres was prepared for the terrible ordeal when he reached here, bearing up well under the strain. Nothing could restore the dead boy to him and he made the best he could of the sad conditions. The long journey of more than 1,000 miles had fatigued him and he retired at the Kenmore shortly after he returned from the morgue, where he saw the body of his boy. It had been a little more than a year since he had seen him, but his features had not changed much. Mr. Ayres had anticipated a visit from his son this summer. They had arranged to meet at Buffalo, and it was the younger man's intention to visit his former home in Michigan. His sudden taking off, however, had changed their plans and the father's long and sad journey was taken in place of the trip to Buffalo. This morning the father arranged with Undertaker Hines to prepare the body for shipment to Michigan. The undertaker embalmed the remains and Mr. Ayres expects to start for home next Monday. Discusses the Murder.

"The calamity is the greatest and most heartrending that I have experienced during the sixty-three years of my life," Mr. Ayres said to a Star reporter this morning, "and my grief is intensified by the fact that some newspapers, for the purpose of being sensational, have slandered the reputation and habits of my son. He passed his twenty-first birthday last December, and until the past year, during his residence in this city, I had seen him continnally and knew that his habits and character were above reproach. He was a young man of unusual intelligence, energy and industry. Although so young he graduated with high honor from the highest school of the town in which he was born, Port Austin; was a graduate of the commercial college at Ypsilanti, Mich.; had passed a civil service examination at Lansing and had received an appointment in the census bureau upon the recommendation of Representative Weeks. While filling this position he pursued a course of studies in the Columbian University in this city. In the last letter I received from him, dated the Sunday previous to his death, was inclosed a certificate showing he had passed all his examinations in the and to the credit of himself. This day I received the letter I wrote him, in which I returned the university certificate. He could not receive it, poor fellow. "That my son had committed suicide seems to me perfectly preposterous. All the circumstances in the case point to the opposite conclusion. That a young man with his energy, enthusiasm and industry should attempt his life without the least shadow of a motive that would prompt such a course is simply ridiculous. I am well satisfied that he would have defended his life to the last extremity instead of attention to destruct the last extremity in the la tempting to destroy it. In his home at Port Austin, where he lived continuously for upwards of eighteen years, his reputation for morality, good habits and recti-tude is all that the fond heart of an affectionate father could ask from an obedient and loving son. Some allowance, perhaps, ought to be made for a young man just entering the threshold of life, separated more than a thousand miles from his home and among strangers, with but a very few friends about him. Although I have not seen him for more than a year-not since I parted with him at Detroit-I have been in constant communication with him. He more frequently, and opened up to me fully and freely all the secret thoughts of his heart. I saw no indications in any of his letters that he had swerved in the least lota from the correct path he had pursued from the time of his birth to the time we parted at Detroit. If he has wavered in the least from those correct habits which had marked his course theretofore I believe he only yielded to some of the temptations that surround a young, intelligent and af-

Some of the Circumstances. "While on this subject I cannot desist from expressing myself somewhat frankly upon some of the circumstances surrounding my son's untimely death. That a young man in his room in a hotel should be attacked by a murderer or murderess and brutally murdered, that people in the hotel and surrounding buildings should hear the shots, the cries of 'Help!' and the agonizing appeals in a city of 300,000 inhabitants, and not go to his rescue or make an outcry is beyond my comprehension. If this murder had been committed in the village of Port Austin there's not a man, woman or child of the 700 inhabitants but who would have raised an alarm and sought to rescue him from the hands of the assassins." Mr. Ayres visited the room in which the crime was committed and made a thorough examination of the neighboring rooms. He has also discussed the question with some of the hotel guests, and the more he hears the more disgusted he becomes over the failure to apprehend his son's slayer. He fails to realize how such a crime could have been committed and no investigation made for so many hours.

Mr. E. R. Ayres of No. 45 West 32d street, New York city, an uncle of the deceased, arrived here this morning and registered at the Shoreham. He visited the Kenmore during the day and learned what
